MEDIA INVITATION

SIWW-CESG 2022 JOINT MEDIA BRIEFING

LARGEST SUSTAINABILITY EVENT SINCE THE PANDEMIC RETURNS IN-PERSON TO DRIVE CLIMATE CONVERSATIONS

Dear Editor,

We cordially invite you to attend a joint media preview by the Singapore International Water Week (SIWW) and the CleanEnviro Summit Singapore (CESG) on Sunday, 17 April 2022.

Climate change is a common existential threat for mankind. The latest report by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change underscores how the impacts of climate change, including increased frequency and severity of extreme weather events, is affecting communities all over the world. The magnitude of this global issue calls for collective action, collaboration and international resolve by global leaders across governments, public, and private sectors.

Held from 17 – 21 April 2022, SIWW and CESG will gather thought leaders, senior government officials, regulators, and policymakers to discuss initiatives and measures to advance our sustainability agenda and grow our water and environment sectors. To deepen international collaboration and spur global innovation, industry leaders will convene at high-level summits such as the Water Leaders Summit and the Clean Environment Leaders Summit to network, exchange knowledge and share best practices for a more climate resilient future.

To shed light on the imperative for cross-sectoral collaboration and stakeholders' engagement in our fight against climate change are these speakers:

- Mr Dalson Chung, Managing Director, CESG
- Mr Ryan Yuen, Managing Director, SIWW
- Dr Alan Ryder, Founder and Chief Executive Officer, RSK Group
- Mr Tom Mollenkopf, President, International Water Association

As part of the joint media briefing session, journalists, photographers/cameramen will be invited for a tour of the NEA Innovation Pavilion and attendance at a Business Pitching session on Water Resilience during the TechXchange forum at SIWW – outlining the part global technological innovations play in tackling the causes of climate change.
